Winter in the Caribbean – Special offer from True Blue Bay Resort & Aquanauts Grenada

One night & one dive day free for direct -bookings with Aquanauts Grenada and True Blue Bay Resort.

Grenada, November 8. 2004: two month after hurricane „Ivan the terrible“ hit the tropical island of Grenada, hotels and other services are open and awaiting guests. Airlines are restoring their previous schedules and offer special rates. Bookings can be made at www.aa.com or www.airjamaica.com .

To match airline specials and to invite tourists back to the isle of spice, True Blue Bay Resort and Aquanauts offer the seventh night and the sixth dive day free for all direct bookings made with sales@aquanautsgrenada.com

True Blue Bay Resort is a charming small hotel with a very personal ambiance. The resort features bar, restaurant, two pools, children's playground, boutique, internet access and dive center on premises. All rooms have air-conditioning and terrace or balcony with bay view. The True Blue Restaurant features a wide variety of meals from the exclusive lobster or delicious Mexican dishes to a simple hamburger. After the dive day one can relax on the beach, in the pool or at the bar, enjoying the ever so beautiful Caribbean sunset.

Aquanauts dive center, located just a few steps from your room at True Blue Bay Resort, offers daily dive and snorkel trips with their comfortable dive boats, which feature toilet, shower, camera table, convenient ladders and diver platforms. Dive sites are just a few minutes away from the dock; knowledgeable dive guides lead small groups and cater to all levels of divers.

Grenada's dive sites are undisturbed by the passing of the storm and still count as some of the best in the southern Caribbean. The experienced diver might want to explore the wreck of the Bianca C, a cruise liner which sank in 1961, while others enjoy the beauty of the reefs at Flamingo Bay or shark reef.

With more than 30 different dive sites, white sandy beaches and friendly people, Grenada has all it takes to be a top notch dive destination.
